MANY JAPANESE SETTLE IN BRAZIL

Recent Heavy Emigration of Laborers Interests Officials Here.

AIDED BY GOVERNMENTS

Traffic Carried on in Business-like Manner—Men Put to Work in Coffee Districts.

Emigration of Japanese laborers to South American countries, particularly Brazil, recently has assumed such proportions as to command the serious attention of State Department officials. While it is felt at present that there is absolutely nothing that can be done even if it were thought desirable to take action, so great is the influx of the Orientals into the radius of the Monroe Doctrine that the movement is regarded as one in which the United States is compelled to interest itself.

The magnitude of the stream of immigrants flowing in recent months from Japan to Brazil, Peru, and also to Mexico is not generally appreciated outside a restricted official circle in Washington. The total number of Japanese in Brazil is now only 10,000, but it is the rapidity with which others are coming that is causing concern here.

The transportation of Japanese to Brazil, and also to other South American countries to a lesser extent, has been placed upon a substantial business basis, in which considerable capital has been invested, and is backed heartily by the governments of Japan and Brazil.

United States Interested.

The racial question between the United States and Japan is so delicate that officials are unwilling even to discuss the possibility of opposition to the swarming of the Japanese to South America, but it is admitted that the development is giving serious attention to this government.

Another interesting phase of the situation is the suggestion from British sources that since the Japanese are coming with such success and giving such general satisfaction in Brazil they might well be introduced in British Guiana.

Only 2,000 Japanese were in Brazil last spring. During that season 3,000 more were brought to Brazil, and immediately thereafter arrangements were made for bringing 5,000 more this fall. That is, the great majority of the 10,000 have arrived in Brazil in less than a year.

There is no attempt to conceal the business-like manner in which the emigration to Brazil is being stimulated by the Tokio and Rio de Janeiro governments. Two emigration companies are engaged in the work in Japan. They are the Tokyo Emigration Company, and the Takebayashi Emigration Company. This fall each received an order from the Japanese government to procure 1,500 Japanese for emigration to Brazil.

Expense is Divided.

The government of Brazil, on the other hand, in co-operation with the government of the State of São Paulo, where most of the Japanese go, pays half the passage money of each emigrant. The emigration managers declare that it costs $25 to send one Japanese to Brazil. Eighty dollars of this is passage money, $40 of which Brazil pays. Ten dollars goes to the emigration company as a commission, and $5 is necessary for miscellaneous expenses.

At present the emigrants are carried to Brazil by way of the Pacific Ocean and Cape Horn, a voyage of more than 12,000 miles. The extreme length of the voyage will be reduced somewhat after the Panama Canal is opened, and it is expected that there will be an increase of Japanese immigration to the east coast of South America.

The Japanese are taken to the coffee districts and there bound out by contract to work on them for a term of years. It is naively complained by the emigration companies that they have much trouble with the Japanese leaving the coffee fields and running to the cities, in violation of the contracts made for them by the companies.

Attracted by Circulars.

The Japanese are attracted to the possibilities of a new home in South America by the circulation in Japan of advertisements originating with the Brazilian and other governments. The steamship companies, emigration societies, and other interests are assisting liberally with the dissemination of this advertising to attract the Japanese to South America.

CATHOLIC KNIGHTS ENTERTAIN.

Annual Event Held for Benefit of St. Joseph's Orphan Asylum.

The Catholic Knights of America gave their thirtieth annual social for the benefit of St. Joseph's Orphan Asylum last night in Convention Hall. It was well attended, and a creditable sum was realized for the institution.

The boys of the asylum gave several drills and sang patriotic songs. The speakers of the evening, St. Rev. William T. Russell, and United States Treasurer John Burke, were introduced by Judge William H. De Lacy. Both highly commended the work of the institution during the past year and complimented the sisters upon the training given the orphans. After the speaking there was informal dancing until a late hour.

CONTRACT IS AWARDED FOR NEW HOSPITAL

Wells Brothers Company, of New York, Will Put Up Emergency's Building for $259,750.

It was announced yesterday by the board of directors in charge of the erection of the new Emergency Hospital that the contract for the construction of the hospital had been awarded to the Wells Brothers Company, of New York. The bid of the Wells Company was $259,750, and was $15,000 less than the next lowest bid.

The structure complete will cost $400,000, and will be fully equipped with up-to-date appliances. A nurses' home and garage will be attached to the hospital. Of the total sum needed, nearly two-thirds have been obtained. A meeting of the board will be held Monday night to discuss ways and means of raising the remainder.

YULETIDE MUSIC ON DISC RECORDS

Many Seasonable Melodies Herald the Approach of Holiday Time.

Yuletide is heralded in the December list of Columbia double-disc recordings. Christmas music looms large and it is noticeable that the recordings are essentially American in every detail, even to the artists who are here represented.

Reed Miller, one of the best known and most highly esteemed of American tenors, has made records of the great opening melodies from Handel's greatest of all oratorios, "The Messiah." His rendering of "Comfort Ye My People" and "Every Valley Shall Be Exalted" are remarkable examples of artistic execution, conceived in the true spirit of this majestic work.

Concerted numbers of unusual interest are Neidlinger's "Birthday of a King," sung by Andrew Sarto and the Columbia Mixed Quartet, and Mendelssohn's "Brightest and Best," by the quartet. Of typical Christmas vocal numbers, these two are among the most attractive and interesting that anywhere could be found. The first, in particular, breathes a Christmaside spirit in every word and note.

One of the best specimens of descriptive music recorded—or composed, either, for a matter of that—for a very long time is "Around the Christmas Tree," played by Prince's Orchestra and composed by Mr. Prince himself. It is out of the ordinary and for this season's entertainment he has written a characteristic Yuletide melody which commences with a gay and melodious Christmas chorus, following which the sleigh bells are heard jingling merrily to announce the coming of Santa Claus. After this is heard a medley of toys, developing into a miniature toy polka, the record closing with a repetition of the Christmas chorus.

On the reverse side of this record is another of the famous Columbia violin, flute and harp trios devoted to a symposium of some of the best-known and best-loved Christmas airs.

There are several records on most unusual subjects. For instance, there is a series of four double discs of Scotch, Welsh and Gaelic records. Particular attention is called to the two solos in Welsh, by Anthony M. Jones, the gifted Welsh tenor, now in the United States, whose voice is one of the most attractive of any now heard in this country.

Dinner at Christian Home.

The annual Thanksgiving dinner of the Christian Home, was held yesterday. Mrs. Alice Lutterbach, superintendent of the home, and other officials last night expressed gratification over the response in donations by the public.
